Hospital, Is the Official.

Attempted extortion on the part of one of the flowers, twined with smilax. On the clerk's desk were two smaller baskets. One exquisite pital was brought to light by The Events World this morning.

Up to last Thursday William Jacobs, of 4 Franklin street, was employed by Henry Samuel's, a dealer in ciothing at 92 and 94 Baxter street, as a "puller In." On that day Jacobs, who had worked for Samuel's for eight months, allowed two customers to get away from him and enter the store of a rival dealer. Samuels was so enraged that he is said to have grasped a pair of tailor's shear and stabled Jacobs and its place and stabled Jacobs and its place and stabled Jacobs and its place and stabled Jacobs and stabled Jacobs and its place and stabled Jacobs and stabled Jacobs and its place and stabled Jacobs and stable and one court and stable and or of the pewelry store at 25 John street, does dor of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and that he saw Roe break in the door of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the place of the pice presumabily with Moritz followed him in, selzed him and the intent to rob it.

Moritz claims that he saw Roe break in the court of the pice place will be presumably with Moritz fallows and the place of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the order the place, presumably with Moritz fallows and the place of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the place of the pice of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the place of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the place of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the place of the jewelry store at 25 John street, and the place of the jewelry stor and stabbed Jacobs in the left cheek, about an inch below the temple.

Samuels was arrested and held in the Tombs Court in $500 ball to await the result of Jacobs's injuries.

Jacobs was taken to Chambers Street Hospital, where his wound was dressed by one of the staff surgeons. Last Saturday Samuels's case was called in Court, and Justice Grady ordered Jacobs to go to the hospital and get a certificate from the doctor who dressed the wound as to whether or not the wound was a Jacobs says that he went to the hospital Saturday afternoon, and as to what happened there makes the following affidavit: At the suggestion of Justice Grady, I went to Chambers Street Hospital Boy, for the purpose of E. therefor, Dec. 1892, for the purpose of the following the form the doctor as to the na-ture of my wound.

retting a certificate from the doctor as to the nature of my wound.

I was asked by one of the attendants what I wanted, and when I told him he asked if I had a card. I told him that I had lost the card that was given me Thursuay, when my wound was drassed. When I expiained that it was not treatment, but a certificate to be shown in court that I wanted. When I expiained that it was not treatment, but a certificate to be shown in court that II wanted. Since the court of the suggeous came in and saked me my name. Then he took me took to one of the reoms in the reer on the ground or office floor and looked over the record book. After limiting for a while he said he could not find it, and called in a dector, whom I recognized as the one who had dressed my wound. That dector found my name at once.

Jacobs visited Chambers Street Hospital this morning in company with an Evenina World reporter for the purpose of identifying the doctor who had made the demand on him for the money for the certificate.

the doctor who had made the demand on him for the money for the certinicate.

The hospital attaches at first professed entire ignorance of any such transaction. Supt. Blake, who is the go-between when any member of the house staff is called for, refused to call Dr. Stachlin when anked to do so by the reporter. Then Supt. Blake disappeared, and when he returned he was asked if it was customary to charge for certificates of the kind Jacobs had applied for.

Mr. Blake said that it was not. The only cases in which they were allowed to charge a fee was where the certificate asked for was

After being informed that a direct charge of extortion had been made against lir. Staen-lin, Supt. Blake still refused to call the doc-tor. An effort at delay was made and Blake

Five minutes later Dr. Stachlin was obliged to pass through the office. Jacobs passing the five minutes and declared:

"That's the man who wanted my money."

Dr. Stachlin passed on, but stopped when the reporter called him by name.

"Here is an affidavit, doctor, charging you with trying to extort money from a patient, have you anything to say?"

Dr. Stachlin cast a hurried glance at Jacobs, who stood beside the reporter, and answered:

Jacobs, who stood besue the reporter, and answered:

"I have nothing to say."

"Do you deny that Jacobs's story is true?"

"I do not know anything about it, and I i refuse to tak on the subject."

"That is the man," persisted Jacobs, as Dr. Stachlin nurried away.
Dr. stevenson, the house surgeon, refused to tak about the matter. Jacobs wont back to the hospital again, and says that he was refused the promised crifficate. The reason given was that he had made so much uses about the matter that only an order from Justice Grady would bring forth the required paper.

The Democratic Senators had planned to pass the measure at once, but the Recounicans looked upon the proposition to give four delegates to each Senatorial district, instead of assigning one to each of the Assembly districts, with suspicion.

The Senators devoted an hour to hand-shaking and the exchange of New Year greetings. Towards noon a few spectators critted into the Onyx Chamber. All the Senators were present when Lieut-Gov. Sneehan's gavel fell.

After routine business and a short recess both honses settled down to hear the reading of the Governor's message.
